This month things went together pretty well; Lee is getting DiaLogs back into shape, and John Sedlacek was nice enough to send in some QSL copies. You'll see some of John's, along with Lee's, and (of course) my own QSLs featured in this issue. Why not send in some of yours? You can email photocopies or attach jpg files to an email to me.

Some of you have mentioned bouncing emails – realns does seem to be having some problems in that regard. If you can capture and forward the complete "bounce" message including all headers, forward the whole thing to: sparkie@realns.com. He says if he gets complete info from the headers he can figure out what's going on.

Don't forget about the Winter SWL Fest in Kulpville – it's a great time and place to meet others with the same level of radio-activity and re-inspire just in time for the summer doldrums! If you haven't yet been to one, you really owe it to yourself to get there; it's kinda like those potato chips – can't eat (or go to) just one! This one's being held on March 9 & 10th at the old Same Place, which used to be a Holiday Inn but is now a Best Western. Same great staff, same phone number even. Hope to see you there!

RAMBLINGS

Al Fansome received his WMNM QSL within an hour of posting his logging on the FRN web site - it said "We knew you would be listening" - Al is now nervous. (Somebody should tell Alan Maxwell about this!)

Captain Ganja - someone notes upward frequency drift on your transmitter. Better fix it or the FCC will be hammering at your door due to poor signal engineering!

A note from Dave Gunn of Ground Zero Radio categorically denies that the station playing the Green Beret song over the holidays was GZR. Dave also wishes to stress that any station that played music without identification was not GZR. He goes on to say that both GZR and WHYP have been jammed by the same Beret-loving station.

He-Man Radio sent me a nice card/QSL and asked that I let folks know that he would be on over the holidays. Unfortunately the card didn't arrive until after Xmas! Sorry! (And I was away over New Year's)

What I want to know is why you guys hear all this good stuff every time my back's turned....mutter....

Contrary to popular rumor, Fearless Fred is alive and still in business, he says the sores have healed nicely.

Two new snail mail correspondents this month (well, new for ME, anyway) - the estimable Marina Pappas in South Dakota and the sentophorous Mister Moe in New Hampshire. Greetings and thanks to both!

Apologies for any inaccuracies on my part - some contradictory reports sent by contributors as well.

Okay, 'nuff said - deadline for next month's DIALOGS is 02/19/01.

Hi and welcome to the February column. No one really complained about the format change that we instituted last month which means that nobody cares, nobody reads this column or everybody liked it. Hopefully it was the latter reason. John Sedlacek said he could have supplied "funny things to say". Thanks, John.

Not much in the way of QSLs to report, but the FREE RADIO STATISTICS follow this column so at least we will have something to print. While I'm at it, don't forget to make your plans to attend this year's Winterfest in Kulpville, PA if you haven't already done so. Unfortunately, I don't think I'll be going this year, but I wish I could! Conflicting schedule.

ALFA LIMA INTERNATIONAL. Full data QSL card & info sheet in less than two weeks for a snail mail report. [Sedlacek-NE] 21890, full data sheet in 3 weeks. [Lobdell-MA]

EAST COAST BEER DRINKER. Full color QSL sheet in about 4.5 months [Sedlacek-NE]

RADIO AZTECA. Full data QSL card, letter & brochure for a psychic, in 3 weeks. [Sedlacek-NE]

RADIO GARBANZO. Full data sheet with "Busta Rhymes" theme and letter apologizing for delay in 8 months. [Sedlacek-NE]

VOICE OF THE LEAKY PEN. Glowing lime green QSL received in 372 days. [Reynolds-NH]

The sole purpose of this column is to enlighten & educate ACE members about the many aspects of Part 15 and micro radio- this is YOUR column! Please send all stuff & what-have-you to the address or e-mail address above- you'll get credit or blame, whichever you prefer!

"IS THERE ANYBODY...OUT THERE?" This is what I was thinking today as I contemplated the column...what with the House voting in the castrated LPFM bill, after listening to the drivel & lies of the NAB and NPR. Now that this has been done, markets for LPFM is GREATLY reduced; instead of hundreds of stations, there may be only tens now. Write to your Representative and ask that, if he/she voted for this piece of garbage, WHY!? And state your reasons for your displeasure in a firm way, not belittling them but making sure you tell them THEY didn't serve We The People as they should have!

So, to take a line from Pink Floyd's album "The Wall" and H. G. Wells' "War of The Worlds" and modifying it: "WILL THERE BE ANYBODY...OUT THERE?"

PREVENTATIVE MEASURES? So, I've seen on one newsgroup lately (alt.radio.pirate) that, in lieu of this legislative piece of poop, folks have been reviving the old "hit & run" method of pirate radio: Irregular schedules, mobile broadcasting, etc. What with the current equipment available, 12-13.8 VDC regulated power shouldn't be a problem! Looks like "Pump Up The Volume" may be resurrected in respect.

And speaking of films, I've always had an interest in movies with a radio theme! My hobby has lasted about 33 years, having started when I was nine years young with a Zenith AM table radio (green bakelite case!) on my bed table. I guess AM radio still holds a romantic area in my heart and probably always will; I still listen a lot.

Nonetheless, speaking of times past, I recently watched a movie called "Frequency" which a young man reaches his father (who passed away) via solar flares and a time rip. It is intriguing and well-written, not a "B movie" like some I've seen in the past. I won't give away the theme, just rent it & watch it; it's really good!

I'd done a search on the web looking for radio-based or radio-themed movies and never turned up a one! However, I did turn up an interesting website for those of you who want to check out & download themes & sound effects: www.soundamerica.com is the site. Looks interesting, although I haven't had lots of time to explore it so far.

And speaking of websites, Broadcast Warehouse has a new one; just log on to www.broadcastwarehouse.com and see what's new. Also, for you SW pirate enthusiasts out there, check out this one: www.egroups.com/group/SWpirates=20 for schedules, info about frequencies, audiofiles to listen to, etc. Sign-up is free, so check it out. My only concern is the FCC also having this information!

SAD NEWS: A well-thought-of UK pirate radio pioneer has passed away, Mr. Bob Tomalski, known as Roger Tate of Radio Invicta. Some of you may or may not have heard of him, but he was seemingly very instrumental in the FM pirate scene in London, back in the 1970's, I think. It was mentioned that he suffered a fatal heart attack. Rest well, friend of radio.

GOOD NEWS! I heard from John McWilliams recently regarding an article from the February 2001 issue of Discover Magazine regarding Napster. If you've followed the court case regarding Napster, it's being decided whether or not they can put downloadable music on the 'web for free. The article goes into what regulation may do to inhibit our rights to certain things, audio and video alike, that we take for granted now. It reminded me of trying to regulate "thought crimes"- yeah, like someone can read your mind and prosecute you for it! Some of the things Jaron Lanier speaks of "isn't so far-fetched- they're happening now", so watch out! Read the article, "A Love Song for Napster" and check with your legislator on any pending laws regarding the court's ruling.

On the flip side of one of the pages John sent was an ad for the NOMAD Jukebox. It's a portable hand-held device that, using your computer, you can download music from the Internet or from your favorite CDs and store about 150 CDs worth of MP3 music. This can be used for a basis of a killer home system! Looks like a possible piece of gear for a LPFM or other station, what with it's 6 GB storage capacity. Check it out at www.nomadworld.com; thanks, John for your contribution!

And speaking of station gear: I'd like to know of anything YOU may have seen or heard of- NEW stuff, that is! Or, any golden oldies we could do an "Archive Release" on. One of the latest developments regard NRG Kits, formerly of a Veronica nature, from the split of one company into two. WARNING: anything with a Veronica name on it of late is CRAP; NRG Kits is the new, good stuff. The Veronica split was reported on here numerous times in the past and it seems the old feud is heating up again. So, if you're considering Veronica, DON'T- buy NRG instead.

So, with that, I'm throwing another log on the fire, contemplating what's to happen with the radio scene in weeks, months and years to come and I'll be with you next time; until then stay warm and get ready for springtime!

Numbers stations have made a hit in the art world. For a truly surreal numbers station experience, point your internet browser to <http://www.isd.net/madams1/numbertwo.html>. Someone has created a website that gives an artistic impression of numbers stations that has to be experienced to be believed.

For those in Washington, DC, there are plans to open a spy museum by the spring of next year. Malrite Co. intends to open the International Spy Museum, which it calls "the largest permanent exhibit dedicated to the history of espionage." The museum will be located at Eighth and F Street NW.

The museum will charge around $8 per person and expects to attract around 500,000 people a year. It will also include a themed restaurant and cafe, a spy-stuff store, and a role-playing game called "Spy Adventure."

Malrite isn't saying what will be exhibited at the museum other than an original Enigma code machine. As an aside, I just hope they learned a lesson from Bletchley Park's mishap with their stolen Enigma machine.

Some of the items on display will be on loan from H. Keith Melton, a collector of espionage tools. Melton is also a historian and technical advisor to the museum. For those who may be unaware, Melton is also the author of The Ultimate Spy Book which contains pictures and information on various tools used for espionage. Of interest to numbers enthusiasts, the book contains pictures of suitcase radios and one-time pads.

There are at least two other spy museums in America, but you and I are unlikely to visit them. One is H. Keith Melton's personal collection, which is viewed by invitation only. The other is a small museum at CIA headquarters, but unless you're a CIA employee or have connections, you're, shall I say, left out in the cold.

Milton Maltz, the founder of Malrite, had the idea to build the museum four years ago. Maltz had been involved in developing Cleveland's Rock & Roll Hall of Fame, and wanted to build another specialty museum. Maltz, who was a former codebreaker with the NSA, came up with the idea after gathering designers and finance people to come up with an idea for a new museum. Once they had the idea, the next step was to decide where to locate it. It was thought that London, Berlin, or Moscow would be natural places to locate a spy museum, but each location presented a different problem. The next choice was Washington DC.

Personally, I think a museum dedicated to those who worked behind the scenes to make the world the way it is an excellent idea that's long overdue. I think the public needs to see what real spies do on a daily basis, as opposed to the James Bond image that we all have when it comes to spying. I for one hope to visit this museum some day.
